OVERVIEW

This is an extract of the SAL Legal Leadership Playbook (2026 Edition). What you have here is a curated subset of the complete resource, designed to introduce you to the Playbook's structure, frameworks, and Situation Map. The complete Playbook covers more than 20 leadership situations across all three levels, with full module content, tools, and checklists for every stage of your legal career. It is a living resource, think of this extract as your entry point. The full resource is where the deeper work begins.

How do you prepare for a conversation with a struggling junior, navigate the complexity of partnership dynamics, or make decisions with incomplete information?

The Playbook starts with leading yourself: building self-awareness, credibility, and personal effectiveness. It then moves to leading others: supporting, coaching, and bringing out the best in your team. Finally, it deals with leading the organisation: shaping direction, navigating complexity, and building culture.

Each stage represents a deliberate shift in perspective: from self, to team, to the whole organisation.

LEADING THE ORGANISATION

"How do I shape the system?"

SITUATION MAP

This map covers leadership situations, grouped into three levels: Professional Effectiveness, Leading Your Team, and Leading the Organisation. It highlights common leadership situations in the legal profession, and each scenario is paired with a suggested approach.

Identify a challenge you're facing and read the first three moves. The complete Playbook enables you to navigate to the relevant section for the full framework and tools. The following examples illustrate the situation-based guidance available across common leadership challenges in the complete Playbook.

PROFESSIONAL EFFECTIVENESS

Judgment, credibility, workload, emotional intelligence, and peer-level influence

1

Situation: I am constantly overwhelmed and feel like I am drowning in competing demands.

Playbook Module: Managing Time, Energy & Workload

Who it applies to: New partner; Senior associate; In-house legal lead

First three moves¹

- 1 Audit where your energy goes, not just your time.
- 2 Schedule recovery time deliberately after intense periods.
- 3 Negotiate workload honestly. Have a direct conversation about capacity rather than absorbing more work silently.

2

Situation: I am struggling to manage my own emotional reactions. I either shut down or overreact under pressure.

Playbook Module: Developing Emotional Intelligence

Who it applies to: New partner; Senior associate; In-house legal lead

First three moves

- 1 Practise "regulation before resolution": calm yourself before you try to resolve anything.
- 2 Identify your emotional triggers using a journalling or self-reflection practice.
- 3 Work on emotional perception first: pay attention to the signals others are sending before you respond.

¹ The First Three Moves in each situation draw on a curated body of leadership research and practitioner frameworks — from institutions including Harvard Business School, Wharton Executive Education, and the Center for Creative Leadership, and scholars including Brené Brown, Hersey and Blanchard, and Daniel Goleman — contextualised for the realities of legal practice in Singapore.

LEADING YOUR TEAM

Presence, coaching, delegation, and adapting your style

3

Situation: A junior team member is underperforming or needs structured development support.

Playbook Module: Developing Others Through Coaching and Mentoring

Who it applies to: New partner; In-house legal lead

First three moves

- 1 Use the SBI model: describe the context, name the observable behaviour, explain the effect.
- 2 Ask questions rather than give instructions. Let them arrive at their own insight.
- 3 Set a SMART goal together and schedule a follow-up.

4

Situation: I want to delegate more, but I don't trust that things will be done properly.

Playbook Module: Empowering and Delegating Thoughtfully

Who it applies to: New partner; In-house legal lead

First three moves

- 1 Distinguish between trust in capability and trust in effort. They need different responses.
- 2 Align team responsibilities with individual strengths, not just availability.
- 3 Delegate and debrief, not just delegate and disappear. Build in a structured check-in.

LEADING THE ORGANISATION

Vision, change, culture, stakeholders, and leading under pressure.

5

Situation: I know I need to raise an uncomfortable issue or challenge a senior view, and I keep avoiding it.

Playbook Module: Leading with Courage

Who it applies to: New partner; Senior associate; In-house legal lead

First three moves

- 1 Have the difficult conversation before it becomes a crisis. The cost of avoidance compounds.
- 2 Hold your position under pressure when evidence and values support it, even if it is inconvenient.
- 3 Acknowledge what you don't know openly. False certainty is more damaging than honest uncertainty.

6

Situation: My firm or team is facing a crisis, and I need to keep a clear head while everyone around me is panicking.

Playbook Module: Navigating Ambiguity and Cognitive Control in Crises

Who it applies to: New partner; In-house legal lead

Three first moves

- 1 Slow your thinking deliberately. Pause, breathe, engage deliberate reasoning before acting.
- 2 Separate facts from interpretation: what is objectively known versus what you are assuming?
- 3 Communicate with composure. Your team takes its emotional cues from you.

GLOSSARY OF KEY TERMS

The following terms appear in the first three moves column. Each is drawn from the Playbook content referenced in the definition.

SBI model (Situation, Behaviour, Impact)

A structured feedback framework. Describe the specific Situation in which the behaviour occurred; name the observable Behaviour (not the person's character); explain the Impact it had. This keeps feedback factual and actionable rather than personal.

Drawn from: Giving and Receiving Constructive Feedback

SMART goals

A goal-setting framework: Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, Time-bound. Used in coaching and feedback conversations to turn development intentions into accountable commitments.

Drawn from: Developing Others through Coaching and Mentoring
